G-MEO's Spring 2021 Internship Conclusion

This Spring semester, 15 students took part in our credit-bearing internship program. They worked as interns in several different industries such as educational organizations, consultancies, corporate training centers, state-owned enterprises, etc.

These 15 students made the best of their own major knowledge to benefit the companies they worked with. They assisted their supervisors with financing services, operations administration, activity organization, public service account operations, summit conferences, and more. Additionally, the 15 students received professional guidance from their supervisors to improve their skills in effective communication, teamwork, coordination, crisis management, etc. The 2021 Spring internship program achieved satisfactory results.

Selected Student Voice

"My main responsibilities were curriculum development and teaching for children's computer programming courses. I usually assisted my supervisor in completing market research, project research, teaching materials, etc.

I've really learned a lot during this internship. My future plan is to start up my own educational company, so the guidance from my supervisor was practical. For example, he would teach me how a company works and told me about the key links in a company's operation. Also, I improved my office software skills, which is something I never learned from my classes. Anyway, I enjoyed my internship!"

"My internship department was in personnel, so a lot of it was work that I hadn't experienced before. I was responsible for school recruitment assistance, which included tasks such as making H5, making presentation PowerPoints, and contacting schools to collect job fair-related information.

This was a brand new experience for me. I think my supervisor and my professor helped me a lot. At the company, my supervisor would ask me which aspect of the company's business I wanted to know about and helped me understand some of the company's projects based on my questions. And I also attended some exchange meetings between our company and other companies, from which I learned a lot and gained work experience that I had never come across before."

Selected Internship Supervisor Assessment

"Ruoyi is a very smart guy. He can finish tasks and achieve goals efficiently because he can easily grasp the subject matter. He has developed his critical thinking skills and communication skills during this time. We trained his skills in marketing research and organizing data using Excel, and guided him in becoming more familiar with our corporation materials. He has quite a creative mind, is eager to learn, and he is very careful with each assignment. We all enjoyed working with him."

-- Terrence, Internship Supervisor at Cegos

"These four students have successfully accomplished their internship tasks, and all of them are self-motivated to achieve their goals. During their internship with us, they helped us design PowerPoints, write working plans and reports, organize our database, and organize events. They also helped us polish our company social media content for branding. We appreciate what they have done and the effort they made was great! We hope they all succeed in their academic pursuits and have a promising future. We will meet again someday."
